Addie Davis Award Winners

Each year Baptist Women in Ministry presents two Addie Davis awards: one for Outstanding Leadership in Pastoral Ministry and one for Excellence in Preaching. Nominations for the awards are collected from seminaries and divinity schools, and this year two separate committees worked independently to select the top nominee in each category.

Gwen Brown is the winner of the Outstanding Pastoral Ministry award. Gwen was given the award for her work in assisting food and homeless ministries with a number of Baptist churches, collecting food and water for earthquake survivors in Haiti, and tutoring and mentoring students in neighborhood schools. Gwen serves as pastor at In Christ We Trust Christian Church, a Cooperative Baptist Fellowship church in Grayson, founded in 2005 by Gwen and her husband, Charles.

The winner of the Excellence in Preaching award is Karen Hatcher, who is known to her friends as Kam. Kam is a student at Baptist Theological Seminary in Richmond and will graduate next May. Her winning sermon was titled A Match Made in Heaven, based on the story of Jacob's wrestling match in Genesis 22. For more information on
